Britain like many western nations is in a muddle about what it stands for in the 21st century. The reason is clear to us at a Blue Revolution:

The current economic and political system has run out of steam. It affects us nationally and locally here in Boston.

This has happened before in the 1930's when the economic reboot was delivered first by the Second World War and then by Socialism. But neither solution should or would work again. Come and find out why!

In the 1980's Margaret Thatcher was in power during an economic revolution, but the enduring legacy of that "Consumer Revolution" has left the west indebted and technically bankrupt.

The consumer revolution explains why we are where we are now. But it can't explain where we should head next. Blue Revolution is an attempt to do just that!

Blue Revolution wants to get the debate started before it is too late and wants to challenge the politicians of the left and right to be really radical and give up some of their power and get more ordinary people involved in running our country.
